Introduction

On entering Brookline High School students face a confused mass of opportunities, programs, and dead-ends; and thus as freshmen they are forced to be responsible to themselves in order to leave the maze. They come to realize that to be successful they must learn to budget time, giving each enterprise its alloted share; and they discover—through four years—that this arrangement of their minutes is the keynote to success or failure as a player of an important role in every activity. Therefore realizing that time is success and living itself, we have chosen as our theme the school clock, symbol of time in Brookline High which is—perhaps—the greatest single influence upon our teen-age existences. This clock, likewise, may stand as a symbol of progress and does so this year as a marker for thirty years of yearbook growth; thus Tick-Tock Timothy and Punctual Pandora represent both our thirtieth anniversary and the influence of time on the Brookline student.

Miss Alice Spaulding

Dedication

The desire to give of oneself exists in almost everyone; but to know how to direct one's giving so that actual benefit is derived from the effort is a true art. We believe that Miss Alice Spaulding exemplifies this ideal. In the course of her years at Brookline High School, Miss Spaulding has instituted such real services to the school as the drama courses and our prized student government. Perhaps the foundation of Miss Spaulding's success in teaching is her genuine interest in the individual pupil, not only during his high school career, but after he has been graduated. All who come in contact with Miss Spaulding as the head of the Brookline High School English Department are impressed by her fertile mind and brilliant teaching. In recognition of the spirit of her unselfish nature, we would like to dedicate our 1953 MURIVIAN to Miss Alice Spaulding.

The bosses confer

Murivian Editorial Staff

As a result of mad dashing to and from room 121 and the untiring efforts and skill of the 1953 yearbook staff, this publication was made a reality which displays the work of the art, literary, copy, and photography staffs, and culminates two years of service on the part of each staff member. Likewise, it brings to an end the training period of the junior apprentice, whose job is to perform errands, educate himself in yearbook "know-how", and compliment the seniors' tasks; it places upon the junior the now removed responsibility of his senior superiors. This responsibility was lightened by this year's staff through team work, enthusiasm and careful use of time; Therefore the students of B.H.S. and especially those of the new senior house ought to be proud of their thirtieth yearbook and benefit from its staff's stated rules of success.

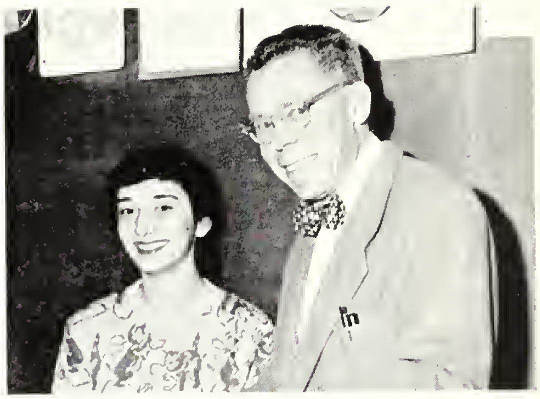
Main money men



Murivian Business Staff

Those hard-working business men and women who keep the aesthetes of the Editorial Staff supplied with the where-withal for their creative efforts are the members of the MURIVIAN Business Staff. Four times each year, these persistent people come to the home rooms to make it possible for the student body to purchase the year book in painless installments. At the close of school during MURIVIAN drives, they can be seen in 309 turning in the money to Mr. Bates in the Junior Brinks Room of Brookline High. The efficient handling of the finances of the MURIVIAN is credited to Mr. Bates and his staff by the grateful student body, who realize the effectiveness of their program.

Dr. Caverly, Superintendent of Schools

The aims of the Brookline School Committee are best summarized by the slogan which appears on the cover of its annual report for 1952: "WE SERVE YOUTH THAT YOUTH MAY LEARN TO SERVE."

This general statement encompasses a multiplicity of activities for which the School Committee as a policy-making body is responsible. These include the overall educational goals for the public schools and the means for achieving them, such as, curriculum, instructional staff, and the physical plant, and the constant interpretation of present and future objectives to the community.

Dr. Andree

You may not recognize it, but these past four years have been the most stimulating experience that you will ever enjoy as partners in a free world. When you entered high school, you were pretty much raw material as a free person. But you began to learn not just words from books but ideas. Your teachers, most of them, have tried to help you formulate a philosophy of continued learning for a dynamic and surging society. They have urged you to supplement your knowledge with conviction which will give basis for the saying that "education is what remains after you have forgotten all that you have learned."

Now you are about to build a new and unknown future in an unknown way. That's your problem. You will be faced with doing what you do not yet know how to do; to live in one world with not the faintest trace of capacity to operate in one which may actually destroy itself; to develop a sympathy sufficient to carry in your hearts the weight of those who died yesterday in Korea or who may die tomorrow in Prague; to cope with the spectacle of machines, finding answers to problems which men who designed them cannot themselves do.

What we have tried to do co-operatively is to endow you with just the freedom, just the sense of unguessed-at processes which if you incorporate them into your lives may equip you to make new adjustments which are so necessary for your new world.

It has been a pleasure to be your colleague, to help you along life's way toward this desirable but unknown goal.

Robert G. Andree

DEAN OF GIRLS

My cordial greetings to the Class of 1953! As we look at you, now the members of the graduating class, it is hard to realize that four short years ago you were just entering Brookline High School. What strides you have made in those years! Now you are ready for the next step, whatever it may be. Whether you are immediately employed, enter the armed services, or go on to advanced schools, you are looking forward to specialized training which will help you to greater success and usefulness.

Certainly there is much to be done in the troubled world by trained men and women of high character, broad outlook, true courage and deep sympathies. We can well follow the familiar advice given many years ago and just as true today, "Make you the world a bit more beautiful, and better because you have been in it." Really doing that is a life work of the highest order.

May the years bring you true success and abiding happiness!

Very sincerely yours,

Mary W. Sawyer

GUIDANCE COUNSELOR

You face a half-century in which the great issue is the free world's fight for survival. Perhaps for many years you will live in a garrison state and watch anxiously as nations slowly and reluctantly unite to save themselves from the scourge of war.

In these years of tension you may choose the easy role of apathy, cynicism, or cowardice, so that you ignore public crises, devote yourself exclusively to your work, your family, and your pleasure, and reject responsibility to make decisions and take action on important issues. If this is to be your role, you will miss half the joy of life.

The alternative role, the exciting and rewarding role, is to act valiantly on a fervent belief that spiritual values transcend material values and that brotherhood, freedom, justice, and equality of opportunity are the things that count.

God grant you wisdom and courage to make the right choice!

Administration

The women who keep our school running like clockwork are well appreciated for the time and effort that they devote to Brookline High School. Patiently answering all far-fetched questions from the student body and faculty alike, they are always willing to do more than is required of them.

Miss Niland, Miss O'Leary, Mrs Pender, Mrs. Hanley.

Art, Speech, and Music

No genius is necessary to understand, appreciate or dabble in Brookline's art courses, as the Art, Speech and Music departments headed by Miss Peckham, Miss Folsom and Mr. Zanzig, respectively, welcome to all students. Various forms of art are introduced to school prodigies who in turn interest the school with their canvases posted in the corridor outside 314; while pupils are taught to express themselves admirably by the speech instructors; and music's realm is opened for all through the band, orchestra, chorus and classes of either music appreciation or fundamentals.

ROW 1: Mr. Joslin, Mrs. Woodbury, Miss Horn, Miss Folsom. ROW 2: Mr. Checkoway, Mr. Wallenius, Mr. Joseph, Mr. Corley.

Business

The business world offers a great number of opportunities for success in life. Here at Brookline High School we have a Business Department that lays the foundations for future careers in business. At the head of this department is Mr. Ehnes, the man who has planned and provided this program. The schedule includes instruction in bookkeeping, typing, stenography, business law, and a general study of business.

Mr. Ehnes and his faculty aim to provide opportunities for cultural development, leading to a full participation in the economic and social aspects of adult life.

ROW 1: Miss Poland, Mr. Ehnes (Head of Dept.), Miss Maguire. ROW 2: Mr. Wall, Miss Hamblin, Miss Greenshields, Mr. Dunbar, Mr. Hurd.

Guidance, Homemaking, and Library

The Guidance, Homemaking, and Library department although presented as one are three of our school's most active groups. Mr. Woodman heads the former by directing the paths of high school's many bewildered students; while Miss Cronan leads the homemaking instructors who prepare their pupils to be thrifty and competent housewifes; and Miss Philips with the other librarians opens the cover to knowledge by presenting displays and talks which prompt all students to delve in the wealth of literature.

ROW 1: Miss South, Miss Abel, Mrs. Means, Miss Egan, Miss Phillips. ROW 2: Mr. Grinnell, Mr. Woodman, Miss Harper, Mr. Archibald, Mr. Parkhill.

English

The English Department, guided by Miss Spaulding, who is ably assisted by Mr. Wilkinson, aspires to train young people to think analytically and logically, thus preparing them for college, for business, and for life. In addition to the courses usually offered in English, the department also makes available to interested juniors and seniors a special course in Creative Writing, expertly taught by Mr. Newsom. In all English classes, however, there can be found one common goal, that of increasing the student's awareness of the applicability of what he reads and learns to related situations.

ROW 1: Miss Johnson, Miss Ambler, Mr. Seamans, Mr. Wilkinson, Miss Shaw, Miss Tiews.
ROW 2: Mr. Michaels, Miss Deal, Mr. Weeks, Mr. Jordan, Mr. Walsh, Miss Fitzhenry.

Industrial Arts

The Industrial Arts Department, under Mr. Edmunds' direction, has a double aim. The first is to serve a number of students who do not have the benefits of a secondary education. Therefore the courses for these boys have a strong vocational flavor. In addition, the department offers an avocational course to supplement the student's general educational opportunities with practical knowledge and experimental learning that calls for the exercise of all senses.

Latin

"Hic, haec, hoc, huius throughout"—mumbles the undaunted freshman Latin student. During the following years, under the conscientious direction of Miss Perkins, Miss Vanacore, and Miss Manter, he becomes acquainted with Caesar's adventures, Cicero's orations, and Virgil's poetry. These four years of study not only unfold the mysteries of Latin to the student, but also help him gain a better command of the English language.

ROW 1: Miss Anderson, Miss Zelinka, Mr. Ward (Head of Dept.), Mrs. Ginty, Miss Bates.
ROW 2: Mr. Bruce, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Downes, Mr. Bates, Mr. Moulton.

Mathematics

It has been the unfaultering aim of Mr. Ward and the Mathematics Department to prepare some students for vocations of scientific and professional nature and to help still others acquire an understanding of mathematics. We shall appreciate this valuable training received at B.H.S. more and more as each of us enters upon his life's work.

Modern Foreign Languages

The Modern Language Department, under the able guidance of Miss O'Brien, offers the student of B.H.S. his choice of three foreign languages, French, German, and Spanish. To receive college credit a student must take at least two years of a language. Oral work, pronunciation, and reading are particularly stressed in all the language classes. French is by far the most popular of all the languages and is taken by a good percentage of the students. Although the work of the department is completed at graduation, its influence is carried over into the student's later life.

ROW 1: Miss Douglass, Miss O'Brien (Head of Dept.), Miss Pfleghaar. ROW 2: Mr. Rinaldi, Miss Holbrook, Mr. Mather, Miss Placido, Mr. Friedland.

Physical Education

Mens sana in corpore sano
A sound mind in a sound body

With this famous expression in mind, the Physical Education Department has prepared a schedule which aims in every way to keep the student physically fit. Under the excellent direction of Mr. Hines, and with so many new sports offered in the course, it is not difficult to attain this goal. Besides the regular activities, a remedial class to correct poor posture has been added to the schedule. The new gym in the North Wing, the modern locker rooms, carriers and showers all help the students to maintain a healthy life

ROW 1: Mr. Hines (Head of Dept.). ROW 2: Mrs. Brusko, Mr. Bemis, Mr. Ball, Miss Kelly, Mrs. Martin, Mr. Weygant, Mr. Carroll.

ROW 1: Mr. Wells, Miss Abel, Mr. Hollingworth (Head of Dept.), Miss Campbell, Mr. Lowe.
ROW 2: Mr. Warren, Miss Bruce, Mr. Bartlett, Miss Murdock, Mr. Keene.

Science

From the timid freshman to the senior scanning new horizons, the Science Department offers four excellent and complete courses. They are General Science, Biology, Chemistry, Physics. Under the direction of Mr. Hollingworth and the other science teachers, the student is able to take these courses and become more mature as he finishes each year. The main purpose of these studies is to open the ever-expanding world of science to the students at B.H.S.

Social Studies

The Social Studies Department succeeds in keeping abreast of the times by giving its students instruction in modern as well as past history. Such classes as World Civilization and Problems of Democracy and the new seminar system evidence the up-to-dateness of the department, so well headed by Dr. Edgerton.

LINCOLN HOUSEMASTER

Those of us who have worked with Lincoln House during the past four years look back on those years with satisfaction and with the assurance that this year's graduating class passes to oncoming classes a school which has benefited from the presence of the class of 1953. During the past four years, Lincoln House has contributed to the scholastic standing of the school, raised its fame on the athletic fields, carried on student government activities in the finest democratic tradition, and produced fine literary, musical, and dramatic publications and presentations. Perhaps even more important, this class has kept school morale and discipline at a high level, and it has enjoyed school life in a pleasant and spontaneous way that has made school life more enjoyable for everyone here.

Congratulations, then, to each member of this Lincoln House for all that you have given to Brookline High School. Your abilities and attitudes have given a prediction of your future happiness and success.

May your accomplishments and satisfactions in future years equal and exceed those of your successful years here.

Cordially yours,

John H. Wall

LINCOLN ASSISTANT HOUSEMASTER

High school years are long enough to make enduring friendships, to broaden our minds, to work with others, to make secure as possible our future. How better secure a future than with a hopeful heart, a willingness to serve, a cheerful spirit, a capacity for work and play, a sound training, an enduring faith, and a friendly smile? May your Lincoln House years help make your dreams come true. It has been a joy to be with you, and watch you grow in mind and heart and spirit.

A friendly salute to all who have won their first goals, especially to those whose fine qualities produced this yearbook for all to admire and enjoy.

Elizabeth P. Shaw

Akers House is eager to assume the great responsibilities of the senior class. Who wouldn't be with such accomplishments? Not just a few outstanding individuals, but all the students in this house have worked together to achieve the goals that they have set for themselves. All have shared in the rewards of success which have come their way. For three years, this amazing class has entertained B.H.S. with its ambitious dances. Never has a Record Hop been so successful as the Dary Hop that the juniors offered to the school in the fall. Akers House has just cause to be proud of its fine officers who have encouraged and led the house to glory.

Packard House has come of age. After only one year of apprenticeship at B.H.S. the members of this class have infiltrated many of the activities in this school which are usually dominated entirely by upper classmen. Now they are stepping out "to walk the quarter-deck" for distinguished service in school affairs and for commendable performance in athletics. The upperclassmen are glad to have these capable understudies who will in the next two years be able to take on the burdens and responsibilities of the junior and senior classes. Let it not be forgotten that the success of Packard House would not be possible without the help and guidance of Dr. Rodeheaver and the wonderful faculty members.

Brookline High School has an unusually wise group of freshmen this year. They know enough to make the most of every minute of their days in high school, as is shown by their wonderful record in many fields of endeavor at BHS. With two members of the house on the championship hockey team, with an undefeated football team, the boys of Shailer House have shown what able athletes the Brookline teams will be gifted with in future years. They have also established a remarkable record of scholarship, with more students on the first honor roll than any other house. We'll all be watching this class for signs of greatness.

Alpha Pi

There are many students at B.H.S. who have shown outstanding achievements in leadership and scholarship. These students are recognized by admission to Alpha Pi.

This organization, under the direction of Mr. Williams, faculty advisor, sets a goal for the students of B.H.S. The gold key, symbol of Alpha Pi, serves as a tangible reward for hours spent under the watchful eye of Tick-Tock Timothy in becoming the type of student B.H.S. seeks to cultivate.

Each year as Tick-Tock Timothy watches the successful juniors and seniors at their initiation, he is proud to hear them pledge that they will uphold its ideals, maintain the fine traditions of its past, and hand over to their successors "its fair name untarnished."

Court of Justice

In recent years, Punctual Pandora has gotten all wound up about seeing a unique form of student government develop in Brookline High. The students of BHS are as proud as Pandora of having a Court of Justice, controlled by the students, who remove from the faculty the problem of discipline. She is always on the watch for the welfare of the students, and at a trial, one may hear her tick approvingly as the defendent exercises his opportunity for defense as in a real courtroom. The final verdict of the jurors is law. It is the Court of Justice which gives power and authority to the Marshal Force. The Captain of the Marshals is the prosecuting attorney, and the jurors are appointed from the upper three houses. By conducting the Court effectively and efficiently, the students of Brookline have earned the honor of governing themselves.

School Council

A government of the students, by the students, and for the students? That's quite an undertaking for any high school governing body. The democratically functioning government of BHS accomplishes just that. This organization, of which Tick-Tock Timothy is an honorary member, is responsible for all the extra-curricular activities in the school. Tim's advice is invaluable to Council members because from his knowledge of the past at BHS, he is qualified to deal with the present effectively. Timothy made sure from the beginning that Council meetings were open to all, so the governing of School is in the hands of all who are interested, rather than only the few who are selected.

Members of the Council are elected annually from each house, with the seniors having a majority. By working hand in hand with Dr. Andree, the Marshal Force, and the Court of Justice, the School Council keeps BHS continually progressing.

Marshal Force

As Tick-Tock Timothy hurried through the halls with one minute left for him to reach his next class, he passed a marshal on the wrong side, unthinkingly, perhaps; but the law was wide-awake, and the offender promptly was apprehended. Time stood still, as Timothy retraced his steps, and continued on the right side of the marshal.

This is only one of the many duties of the Marshal Force, whose heroic work in the lunchroom goes unappreciated too often. Those who keep our lunchroom a pleasant place in which to eat have earned the distinctive armbands by which Timothy was able to recognize his apprehender. Timothy has a new respect for the results of co-operation among the three capable branches of our priceless student government.

Every other Thursday time really flies as Tick-Tock Timothy attends the meeting of the Aero Club. There, along with his fellow aviators, Timothy not only studies the mechanism of an airplane, but gets a chance to build and fly his own model planes. Often, he enjoys guest speakers, and sees timely movies on air navigation. Timothy eagerly anticipates the annual trip to Revere Airport, for at that time, he and other members have an opportunity to handle the controls of an actual plane. Several of his co-pilots won prizes in the New England Championships of last year. The Aero Club, under the direction of Mr. Warren, also sponsors several contests throughout the school year in which members compete against each other for top prizes.

As Tick-Tock Timothy climbs into the cockpit of his space ship to fly into the future, he hollers, "Keep 'em flying"!

Anglers' Club

Tick-Tock Timothy dozed peacefully, rod in hand, as time slipped by unnoticed. A sudden tug on the line, and the battle began. It was a contest of life and death between a denizen of the deep and Timothy, our hero. The battle ended in the classic manner, with Timothy landing his prize. As the projector ground to a stop, the members heaved a sigh of relief and the lights were snapped on.

However, no one should get the idea that this is an indoor fish club. In fact, besides several fishing trips made during the year, the club takes a jaunt to Walden Pond as its annual special event. Lectures and demonstrations on special techniques of the art of fishing are given.

To experience the sudden pull and the singing out of the line, to know the thrill of landing a catch, Tick-Tock Timothy recommends spending some time with the Anglers of Brookline High.

Art Club

For aspiring young artists, or those people who merely dabble to pass time, the Art Club under Mrs. Woodbury's tutelage, offers a chance to fulfill the desire to mess up one's fingers and paper with paint. Not only do these Renoirs paint with their fingers, but they also indulge in such weird occupations as painting to the tempo of Brahms, boogie-woogie, and the blues. No doubt the effect is startling. The Art Club sponsors an annual contest open to the whole school, and anyone who has a flair for art may compete. Awards are given to those whose work is outstanding. Occasionally, trips are taken to museums or art galleries to view the timeless masterpieces of great artists. These excursions supplement lectures, book reviews, and movies, also on the agenda. It is not necessary to visit the Museum of Art while there still exists in Brookline an Art Club which is truly worthy of its name.

Band

The omnipresent buzz from the packed gym was temporarily hushed as Tick-Tock Timothy raised his baton, and the BHS band lit into the strains of "Hit the Line". That was the day before "the" game of the year, the one time when the Band seemed to the school to be almost as important as the football team.

However, there is another aspect of band activity, and when Timothy stepped into the Band Room, during practice, he was greeted by the resounding chords of Finlandia. This seems quite a different organization as it practices for concerts in Brookline, and festivals in different cities throughout the state.

The band is composed of about eighty pieces, ranging in size from a piccolo to a tuba. Timothy soon realized that the band is an integral part of the school spirit during the football season as throughout the rest of the year.

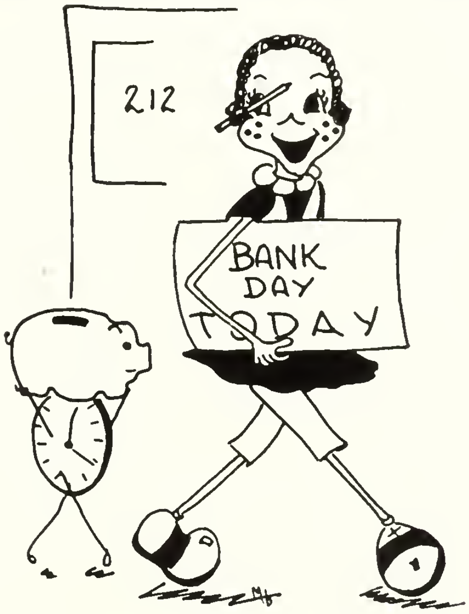
Bank Staff



No gypsy fortune teller is needed to predict coming financial problems for our gal Punctual Pandora. She has saved punctually and promptly every other Tuesday of her school career, and is now prepared to meet her senior expenses. There is at Brookline High an active and helpful Bank Staff responsible for this happy state of affairs, which carries out a thrift program. Mr. Hurd and his two senior assistants, Harriet Braen and Arlene Zussman, direct a selected staff of about fifty, chosen to carry out these duties. Every two weeks the bank messengers and clerks try to beat the clock as they distribute bank notices, collect deposits in the home rooms, and record and total all such deposits. The next time Pandora looks into the crystal ball, she'll see a bright financial future, thanks to the service of the High School Bank Staff.

Affiliation Committee

"It's high time everybody knew about the pioneer movement that's taking place at BHS to promote understanding between our students and those in Europe," whirred Timothy Tick-Tock, his mainspring gone mad in his enthusiasm over that wonderful new Brookline High organization known as the Affiliation. Through the sending of projects to the College Michelet in France to explain about life in Brookline and the United States in general, the members of the Affiliation hope to become part of a larger project to promote understanding among all people. Representatives from most of the activities at Brookline send pictures, explanations, dolls, and the like telling about the Girls' League, Student Forum, sports, the different publications, the language clubs, and all the other activities that we at BHS take as a matter of course.

As Timmy walked off to help make up the MURIVIAN package, he had a better understanding of the purpose of the activity carried on by the Brookline Affiliation.

She continued, "Every other Tuesday, we make sure that the money checks with the total on the bank envelopes, and that this money goes safely from the bank messengers to Brinks. Any house or club bill must be cleared through our important organization. I'd like to have you meet Mr. Ehnes, who as well as being the head of the Commercial Department, is our time-proven faculty advisor. You know, not only are the stock-room boys supplied from this organization, but also the bookkeepers and typists who efficiently manage all the financial transactions within the school." "Tick . . . tock . . . tick . . . tock . . ." What's that frightening noise emerging from room 332? Could someone be mixing chemicals for a time-bomb? Knowing our Chemistry Club, it's possible, but with their kind inclination toward mankind, it's doubtful. This organization has learned that chemistry is not merely mixing chemicals together to obtain an explosion, but a scientific study of chemicals and elements and their reaction when combined, not necessarily for such devastating things as time bombs. All of these club meetings are enjoyable experiences where experiments are performed and science is the topic of the moment. Quite often, club members view movies concerning the latest scientific achievements. This club, which can point with pride to its accomplishments over the past years, is sure of success in the years to come.

Chess Club

As the minutes tick slowly by, avid members of the Chess Club sit intent on thinking out new plays to foul up their opponents, while the opposition squirms unhappily. Every Friday, eager club members meet to play against each other and other schools. Chess, one of the oldest games in the world, is firmly established in its popularity at Brookline High. Time has proven the members of the Chess Club to be true champions, as they have won six interscholastic matches in the past twelve years. This game is especially designed for people who have time on their hands, for chess requires intense concentration, and a quick and agile mind to spot new developments. To a non-chess player, it is hard to understand that when a game is over, it is really only half-finished, for some of the most enjoyable moments in chess are found when players mull over what moves should be or could have been made to better advantage.

Debating Society

At Brookline High we have a debating society that develops and trains students in the art of skillful debating. One of the most valuable achievements that one can accomplish is the ability to think and reason clearly for oneself; this ability not only aids one in presenting a convincing argument in a debate, but of far more importance, it helps one achieve greater success in life. The program of the Debating Society includes intramural and interscholastic debates. Our forces, which are as strong as ever this year, compete against such schools as Andover, Boston Latin, Roxbury Latin, Waltham, and Newton.

In a debater's words, "I am fully convinced that the Brookline High School Debating Society cultivates in us greater understanding and wiser judgment."

Dramatic Society

"No, no, Timothy. We have no time to waste on the mistakes of a freshman stagehand." As Timothy popped his head out from under the ruin that he had created, he remarked, "Well, I know I'm not an actor, and I guess I'm not much of a stagehand, but there's sure to be some job for me in the Dramatic Society," and full of zeal he hopefully trotted over to the costume department.

Beside producing an annual play, the Dramatic Society offers to any interested student the opportunity to become a part of the fascinating world of the theater. The costuming, ushering, art and scenery, sales and publicity, and stage and electrical committees all devote a tremendous amount of time to the behind-the-scenes work that merits as much applause as does the performance of those who are actually seen. By their regular meetings, efficient backstage work, and polished performances, the Dramatic Society is fully rewarded by the admiration and respect awarded it by the entire school.

F. H. A.

"For those girls who are wise enough to realize that 'the way to a man's heart is through his stomach', the F.H.A. is a very valuable organization", said President Pandora, deftly removing a fragrant batch of cookies from the oven. "Our club at Brookline High is only one of many chapters all over the country, but we all have one thing in common: we all try to promote modern methods of homemaking and emphasize its importance in the future lives of our members. Somehow, in addition to our regular meetings, we also find time to have picnics, visit food and candy factories, and hold our own successful parties. If there are any doubting Tims evesdropping who tend to look down their masculine noses at the culinary arts, they too can be convinced of the value of our club by undergoing the painless process of membership."

French Club

Bewitched and bewildered is the poor freshman at his first meeting of the French Club. It's just too embarrassing to hear the juniors and seniors "parle francais" as if it were the vernacular. Oui, to be a member of the French Club one must be a fairly proficient French student. The meetings are carried on completely in French and by this means the students gain a greater knowledge of the French people, their language, and their customs. Under the lively guidance of Mr. Rinaldi, club members present and attend plays and enjoy folk singing, games, and bona fide French refreshments. For one of the elite who can achieve an A or B as a final mark in French, the time has come to partake in the fun and education that the French Club offers.

Girls' League

The Girls' League is the one organization in the high school in which almost every girl is active, and Punctual Pandora is no exception. One may find her at different times of the year engaging in such League activities as settlement house work, toy-making for the Christmas Workshop, rehearsing a skit for a house meeting, or planning a Mothers' Tea. Pandora always tries to uphold the League standards of service and sociability as in her capacity as a junior and later senior advisor to incoming freshman girls. Through her League activities Pandora has come to know and appreciate the invaluable service of the League's advisors, Miss Sawyer and Miss Poland, as well as making many lasting student friendships.

Ham Radio Club

"Calling LC3, LC3. This is WIAGE, WIAGE." A switch is flicked and a voice in return blurts out over the ether, "Be glad to have your company. I'm speaking to M24 in Minneapolis. Here he is, Come in M24". Timothy Tick-Tock is spending another engrossing session with his short-wave radio.

There are a great many such radio operators, "hams" for short, who keep in constant contact with one another. These "hams" can communicate cross-country and even internationally with the proper equipment. Their radio sets are very complex, and the building of these involves a great deal of highly technical knowledge. Ask Timothy. It took him several weeks to learn the Morse Code well enough to obtain his license. The Amateur Radio Club is a rather new organization at BHS, but its members are making excellent progress in an advancing field.

Jazz Society

The Jazz Society, with its interest in a special form of American music, caters to a small group which understands and appreciates jazz. Mr. Bruce, the faculty advisor, believes in giving the members almost complete responsibility; in fact he merely takes the part of an interested bystander ready to give aid where it is needed. Since many members play musical instruments, the jazz records which are played at the meetings are often supplemented by live players, which greatly adds to the general enjoyment and hilarity of the affair.

Some of the members are avid collectors of jazz records, and though it cannot be compared to Basin Street, the society can really give out with those "crazy sounds". As long as the Jazz Society exists, on certain days and in certain rooms, the St. Louis Blues will reimpress its notes on the listening ears of B.H.S.

Latin Club

Strangely attired in a toga, Pandora made her dramatic entrance as the wife of that famous Roman orator Tick-Tock Cicero. Portraying people of bygone days helps the members of the Latin Club to further understand and appreciate the customs and contributions of the Romans. Contrary to the common belief that the greatest accomplishment of the Romans was learning to speak Latin, Pandora tells all who will listen that the events in Roman history have a most timely significance for modern students. Pandora neither had nor shed Roman blood for admittance to the Latin Club, but she did have a sincere interest in the Latin history and language. Pandora made her exit amid a burst of applause that rivaled that received by any orator in the Roman Senate.

Library Aides

From tales of ancient Rome to books on atomic energy the omnipresent Library Aide is ready to find books, check them out, and return them to their proper places. These students who work in the library during their study periods and before and after school are always ready to help solve the mysteries of the library, when the librarians have suddenly vanished.

The Library Aides are invaluable during the rush hours, and their services are gratefully accepted by the harried librarians. While everyone knows that education contains reading, writing, and 'rithmetic, not everyone is aware that the reading end of this is made pleasant by the Library Aides. As long as they are at work, one may be sure that the books will keep flowing along in a steady, uninterrupted stream from library to reader and back again.

Shades of Shakespeare! Having just read a copy of Literary Leaves, I wonder who wrote some of the stories, essays, and poems in it. Can it be a student at BHS, or is it Shakespeare or Longfellow? A lot of work is necessary to turn out the Literary Leaves, but thanks to Miss Tiews and those students who enjoy writing and are willing to work, a wonderful copy is turned out every year. There is not only one group in the Literary Society, however. Those who prefer reading to writing are members of the Readers' Group, in which great books of past and present authors are read and discussed. The Writers' Group works on original manuscripts of all descriptions, trying to bring them up to the calibre necessary for publication in Literary Leaves, no mean feat. There is not any of the usual coercion involved in membership in the Literary Society, and as a result, the members are all sincerely interested, making their organization one of the finest.

Lunchroom Staff

Seven lunches in ninety minutes! It seems as if only a miracle could see to it that twenty-three hundred people could be fed so efficiently in such a short space of time. This is, however, no miracle. It is the lunchroom staff of Brookline High School. Under the guiding hand of Mrs. Williamson, all the school lunchrooms in Brookline run like clockwork. The staff of students who volunteer to do service in the lunchroom help the Marshal Force in keeping it a pleasantly clean place to eat, as well as running the dishwashers, and serving the food to the hungry mobs which invade the lunchroom periodically. The students receive, in return for their work, free lunches and a small salary, to prove that love's labors are not lost.

Poor Tick-Tock Timothy! The Math Society is not for him. Like some BHS students, math and he are not very compatible. There are, however, some students who understand and appreciate the higher forms of mathematics. They are the members of the Math Society. They may not all become Future Physicists of America, but they do understand the great value of advanced math in the modern world. The only qualification for membership is a promise to submit a project to the Science Fair. Often Timothy hears his more mathematical friends discuss the meetings which have been held at institutions or labs where advanced math is taught. Timmy realizes that this club is not for the average math student like himself, but he has been assured that it is a guaranteed source of delight to those who accept its challenge.

Music Society

Pandora hasn't really lost her mainspring. She's just become a Syncopated Clock after joining the Brookline High Music Society. From Anderson to Bach, and down the entire length of the musical alphabet, members of the Music Society become well-rounded musically. No music snobs here! Talent is not a prerequisite either, for this democratic group. All that's needed is the desire to hear good music and the ability to appreciate any type. After hearing the music at a particular meeting, the members discuss and analyze what they have heard, aiming for a greater appreciation and understanding of music as a whole. Pandora was in the mood to hear ever more music when she left the society's last meeting.

That reliable metronome you think you hear in the background of one of the strenuous rehearsals of the orchestra is really Tick-Tock Timothy expressing his appreciation for the really fine music made by this excellent group. The members of the Brookline High Orchestra are genuinely interested in music, as is evidenced by their attendance at the Tuesday evening rehearsals. The opportunity to play different types of music, and to entertain their friends encourages about thirty-five resourceful students to join each year. Timothy ticks when he attends the annual school productions, for it is at those times that the orchestra really excels, demonstrating to the entire school the results of its labors.

She had just received an invitation to a preview of a concert by the select group of musicians at Brookline High School known as the Orpheus Ensemble. This group was formed with the intention of giving individual students with outstanding musical ability the experience of playing together in a chosen group. Pandora could hardly wait to hear them, as news had reached her concerning their outstanding performances at the Senior Awards night and their annual concert program. The highlight of the year for it is participation in Music Festivals, which are held on the state-wide and local levels.

Pep Club

Brookline High School is a student body with a good healthy thyroid gland, the Pep Club. This is one of the most vital organs in our school. Its major function is to stimulate interest in sporting events. Without this club there would be no school rallies in the gym, no bright victory posters on the walls, no noisy and teeming cheering section after games to cheer our teams on to glory, and above all, little or no school spirit. The job of the Pep Club is an important one. Tangible evidences of the Pep Club's wonderful success are the Brookline book covers, and the bright red carnations sold before the Thanksgiving Day game. This organization is obviously prepared to accept the great responsibility of maintaining the high level of school spirit that we know at Brookline.

Physics Club

Mystifying, strange, and yet practical is the study of physics, the science of matter and motion. Punctual Pandora appeared one day at a meeting of the Physics Club to ask, "What happens when a ball bounces, or the lights go out? Why is it that everything that goes up must come down? I know these questions sound funny, and maybe out of place, but can you please explain them to me?"

Such problems as these are investigated by the Brookline High physicists. When they have solved them, the results are clear, accurate, scientific explanations of how and why these things are so. At their meetings many every day phenomena are studied and accounted for by mathematical calculations and laboratory experiments. Each year at the Science Fair, members present their solutions to some of the more complex problems. On their way to becoming experts in this field are our Brookline physicists.

Radio Club

"Gee whiz," sighed Timothy Tick-Tock, "How I wish I could be on the radio. Even a little spot commercial would do, but I'd give my minute hand for a little radio time." The powers that are in the Radio Club must have overheard Timmy's plea, for to their great joy, they managed to obtain some radio time every week for the club. Any Friday at 4:30, one may hear Radio Club members try their hands at being disk jockeys on their Platter Party on Station WVOM, where their contacts with people who have made their mark in the field are almost as valuable as the experience they gain in production. For those whose talents run to different lines, there are the script, technical, and publicity committees. The Sag is such good reading material that this situation can't be helped. The trees start moving, faster and faster. This is no drunken dream, but stark reality. The wind and snow bite into Timothy's face as he sits with other members of the Ski Club in the Squad Room tensely watching the movie as part of a group of fanatical skiers.

Mrs. Means and her Social Customs Club stepped right up and gave her the answer. They offered her the chance to become more popular, make more friends, cultivate leadership, develop good manners and grooming, and improve her social poise. During the course of the year, to promote greater social activity at Brookline High, the Social Customs Club holds several parties, as well as its meetings, and often carries out a group project. This year there will be at least fifty-two more popularity-plus girls at BHS, for popularity and personality depend not only upon beauty and brains, but just as greatly upon personailty.

Stage and Electrical Staff

In readiness, his fingers on the controls, electrician Tick-Tock Timothy waited for the signal. Then blackout! Any would-be dreamer in the audience was startled to his senses. The actors were encouraged by this sudden tension and eagerness among the onlookers. The show was a success.

Holding the vital hand in the success of any performance on stage at Brookline High School is the Stage and Electrical Staff. Tick-Tock Timothy's face expressed bewilderment and confusion. Lost! Then suddenly this expression turned to one of joy and he scurried off in the direction of his next class. What a valuable aid to newcomers is the Students' Manual with its handy floor plan of Brookline High School. This trusty little guide can direct one to any corner of our high school, ancient, medieval, or modern. It presents to one a clear picture of the activities, events, sports, and people found at BHS. For freshmen who, like Timothy, are somewhat bothered by the size and depth of our high school, there is no better introduction to the school than this handbook. For upper classmen, there are explanations of Alpha Pi and its point system, and valuable advice about applications to college. With a team loaded with veterans, Mr. Downes and his squad ran up their colors to third place in class A. Never before had there been so much spirit behind our men as they marched down the field. In spite of the serious handicap of injuries to co-captain Bob Conway and Phil Rollins, the team held together and put forward one of the best defensive lines in the state, powerfully backed by co-captain and all-star center Richie Carolan. Our arch rival, Newton High, never had a chance as we swarmed over them completing our most successful season in this league.

Captains Carolan and Salmaine with Coach Grinnell

Brookline is justifiably proud of its champion basketball team, which this year won the Assumption College Basketball Tournament at Worcester. In this tournament, Jimmy Burke received the Most Valuable Player award, and Dom Saltalamacchia received an award for outstanding sportmanship. It was not only these boys who were responsible for Brookline's triumph in finishing third in the Suburban League this year, however, but also George Star, Co-Captains Frank Salmaine and Richie Carolan, Willie Young and Johnny Clausen. In the final analysis, emphasis should be placed on the fact that this year's fine record was the result of team effort and good ball handling, rather than of individual stardom.

Baseball

This year, our baseball team continued to bring Brookline the acclaim and recognition introduced by the other sports teams. Under the tutelage of Coach Fitzgerald, the Red and Blue continued to uphold its reputation as a state power. Brookline was again well represented on the diamond by the seven returning lettermen who formed the nucleus of the team. Led by Co-Captains Bob Conway and Frank Salmaine, Brookline enjoyed a very successful season. Phil Rollins, Tommy Norris, Johnny Clausen, and Eric Horter were other outstanding players on the well-coached Brookline varsity. Batter up!

Golf

Those teams encountering the Brookline golf team this year have found it very difficult to come out on top. This can be explained by the fact that Mr. Woodlock, the team's able coach, has had a great deal of talent with which to work. The outstanding play of Captain "Bishop" Tait, newcomer Billy McGrail, and three-year veteran Ed Hegarty was supplemented by the great improvement shown by veterans Jackie Donovan, Eddie Kirrane, and Jimmy Hughes. Other newcomers gave such good accounts of themselves that they are bound to form the nucleus of a fine team in years to come. Our team has again played a very difficult schedule, including such teams as Newton, Watertown, Waltham, Winchester, and St. Sebastian's. This year as usual all home matches were contested at the Brookline Municipal Golf Course.

Hockey

How are champions made? Ask the Brookline hockey team. They'll tell you it's done by beginning practice early in the fall, and continuing through March, both before and after school, with the guidance of a coach such as Mr. McCann. This year the team was more than rewarded for its efforts by winning the Eastern Massachusetts Hockey League Championship, and by completing the ten-game regulation season undefeated. This victorious schedule led to an invitation to participate in the Metropolitan tournament, and elimination for state school-boy hockey supremacy. Although it was finally defeated during a sudden death period in the semi-finals with Malden Catholic, there is no doubt that this year our hockey team deserved all the honors which it won.

Swimming

Against really stiff competition this year, the Brookline High swimming squad performed very well in all its meets. Although it was beaten by three college freshman teams, it defeated the Boston Latin, Huntington School, and Wellesley High swimmers, and made a fine showing against its other high school competitors. Decidedly outstanding in this aquatic schedule was Burt Hurvich, who was undefeated in the 100 yard freestyle throughout the year. The team proved that it takes a lot of grit and real courage to keep fighting even when victories are scattered.

Cross Country Track

Either a team of individual stars or a smooth-running group will generally turn in a good season, but a combination of the two makes for a wonderful year. Such is the case at Brookline High this year. Our cross country team ran over a two-and-a half mile course to a team record of three wins and two losses, led by Captain Bob French. Surpassing the competition of such schools as Cambridge High and Latin, Malden Catholic, Somerville, Rindge Tech, and BC High were Captain French and Elliot Pearlman, ably strengthened by runners Dave Welz, Alby Kerber, Mark Michaelson, and David Campana. The boys of the Cross Country Track Team are a team of which the school should be proud.

Spring and Winter Track

The legmen of BHS ended a successful season after having run eight hard meets. Although winning but one meet in the Metropolitan League, the team lost two others by just one event. Led by Captains Crosby Day and Kenny Glick the Red and Blue scored tremendous upsets in the B.A.A. and State Meet. In the former, the boys finished third with 9 points, and in the latter, Brookline came within one point of being the best Class A track team in Massachusetts. An impressive showing in the National High School Track Championship in New York paved the way for a top division rating at the Bowdoin Games. In addition, under the guiding eyes of Coach Weygant many fine new prospects were developed this season. Among them, Franny Manning, our capable hurdler, Steve Wallack, promising sophomore 300 yarder, Dave Campana, excellent man in the 1000, and distance excellers Dave Weltz and Eliot Pearlmen.

Learning the art of tennis

Tennis

Some of Brookline's less publicized but important sportsmen are the aggressive racketeers who comprise the tennis team. Led by senior Steve Volk, who is also number one man on the squad, the team participates in matches with public and private schools. Tennis practice starts in the fall, when a tournament is played to determine the members and their standings on the team; while during the spring, competition is directed toward defeating teams from opposing schools. Although prospects look bright for a successful future season, only time will tell if we have any prospective Davis Cup contestants. In the meantime, tennis, anyone?

Archery

There are no Robin Hoods at BHS, for their places are taken up by champions of the fairer sex. Once a week on the indoor track, this band holds it own contests of marksmanship. The individual and team competition is good. For some girls, this activity is a pleasurable carry-over from class instruction, while others learn the lore of the bow at the afternoon sessions.

Basketball

Something new has been added to the basket ball court — women! Each house sponsors a basketball squad, and the four classes work in inter-scholastic ladder competition to determine which house has the best players. One team is in practice four out of five school days to develop their spectacular hook-shots, set shots, and smooth guarding.

Golf

Golf is nominated by many girls at Brookline High, as the sport most valuable in later life. The minor frustrations of a swing and a miss are more than compensated by the pleasure of an afternoon on the Brookline Municipal Golf Course. Instruction by the Municipal professionals gives our girls an excellent foundation in the principles of golf.

Hockey

Maybe it's a fortunate thing for the boys that they don't have to compete with the girls' field hockey team, for the girls offer tough opposition. This year, as always, they have turned out a top-notch team, for few of their opponents have been able to match their superlative ability and teamwork. To Captain Paula Lothrop and her team go congratulations for a fine season.

Modern Dancing

The 50 by 50 room, is the scene, not only of square dancing, but of a new type of dancing, modern dance. Part of the time is spent in workout techniques to limber up the dancers before they attempt the creative aspect of modern dance—interpreting different types of music and ideas with motion.

ROW 1: Mann, Shackter, Sugarmalter. ROW 2: Quimby, Brundage, Bobrick, Betts.

Riding

"Heads up, heels down, and trot, please!" Our girls don't look like that at the first lesson, perhaps, but by the end of the course they're almost ready for shows. Indoor and outdoor rings as well as lovely trails through Franklin Park, afford beginners and advanced riders alike with wonderful experiences in the spring and fall.

Which way?

At rest

Swimming

There's nothing fictitious about the mermaids in the Brookline pool. These hardy athletes meet every Wednesday afternoon to improve their stroking, kicking, and diving. Later in the year, those who have developed the most speed are chosen to represent the school in inter-scholastic meets. The girls find that, beside the pleasure involved, swimming is a valuable asset in later life.

ROW 1: Morse, Barkin, Roman, Sudalter, Alper, Zussman, Rodman, Kesselman. ROW 2: Abrams, August, Block, Silbert, Levin, Aronoff, Walk, Mrs. Brusko.

Tennis

The stroke, the service, the chop, and the lob are the strokes that must be mastered by good tennis players. The girls' varsity squad, using the Dean Rd. courts in the spring, tries by weekly practice to advance toward perfection in its game.
